"Be the Revolution" this Women's History Month

The Office of Community Development is teaming up with AAUW and BSG to honor International Women's History Month with the "Be the Revolution" event series.

"Be the Revolution" Official Poster

The Office of Community Development at The College at Brockport has teamed up with the American Association of University Women (AAUW) and Brockport Student Government to fund a month-long series of events titled "Be the Revolution." This event series will focus on closing the gender leadership gap in the United States.

Throughout the month of March, The College at Brockport will honor International Women's History Month by hosting free events every day throughout the month. Each week will focus on a specific theme: Understanding Bias; United We Lead; Spring Break Challenge – Take Action; Rights, Policy, & Service; and Promoting Yourself & Knowing Your Network. These events will consist of social events, community conversations and service opportunities. This event series is open to all students, staff and community members.

The "Be the Revolution" event series was made possible by a grant funded by the AAUW. In September, the AAUW put out a global call for Campus Action Projects to address the gender leadership gap. A team of 10 students from The College at Brockport answered that call and was fortunate enough to be awarded one of 12 grants to implement their event series.

"They (the committee members) have worked hard to put together a robust program of events that is inclusive of and open to individuals of all identities," said committee member Tambria Schroeder. "We are confident that the Brockport community can be the revolution if we all work together."

Environmental Science Graduate Student Wins School Award

Ms. Eli Polzer, Master of Science student in the Department of Environmental Science and Biology, has been named the School of Science and Mathematics Graduate Student of the Year. Ms. Polzer is a 2008 graduate of the SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry, where she was co-valedictorian. She is an advisee of Dr. Doug Wilcox, Empire Innovation Professor of Wetland Science. Her thesis research involves an analysis of restoration methods for coastal wetlands along the shore of Lake Ontario.

Alumna Brings "The Asylum Project" to Brockport

Elizabeth Mozer '82 will perform her solo stage production of "The Asylum Project", based on the stories of patients and families of the Asylum for the Chronic Insane in Binghamton, tonight at 7:30 in the Tower Black Box.

Brockport alumna Elizabeth Mozer, now on the faculty at SUNY Binghamton, has developed a one-woman show called "The Asylum Project", and will be performing it tonight in the Tower Fine Arts Black Box Theatre at 7:30 pm, followed by a brief talkback with any interested audience members.

She says:

"My journey began in August 2015 when I took a tour of the now derelict Asylum for the Chronic Insane (Binghamton State Hospital), a psychiatric hospital in Binghamton, NY. During my visit to the asylum (known locally as The Castle). I was awakened to the lives that lived, worked and visited the grand building and was inspired to share their voices. I began researching the history of the asylum, as well as other NY state asylums that operated between the years 1880-1980. I have now completed the creation of a solo theatre piece The Asylum Project with text and movement drawn from the experiences of individuals related to the asylum based on research, interviews, personal accounts and imaginings. I play 5 characters during the 60 minute play.

"In the play we hear the voices of people who are often silenced or forgotten. These individuals are some of the more vulnerable among us. Sharing their voices, during this current political climate in particular, has the potential of strengthening our humanity and deepening our understanding and appreciation of all kinds of people.

"Increasing mental health awareness and decreasing the stigma that mentally ill persons and their loved ones experience is critical for people everywhere, especially for our youth and college students. Perhaps The Asylum Project can help facilitate these conversations and we can consider how theatre, and art in general, can uniquely address the social concerns of our time."

35 YearZ of Finer

This banquet seeks to highlight the accomplishments of the women that have joined the Chi Lambda Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. and awarding current women in the Rochester/Brockport community and college campuses.

The year was 1920. It was the start of the decade, shortly after World War One, and a time of great prosperity for the country. Women were called dames, dolls, or the cat's meow. At the beginning of the decade, women still wore long skirts but the "Roaring 20s" brought a new look of short skirts and smartly coiffed shorter hair. Racial tensions were high and quotas set for immigrants coming into America. The Klan was very active during this period. The Harlem Renaissance was acknowledged as the first important movement of black artists and writers in the US. On January 16, 1920, the Volstead Act became effective, heralding the start of Prohibition and on August 18th of the same year, Tennessee delivered the crucial 36th ratification necessary for the final adoption of the 19th Amendment, giving women the right to vote. The worst and longest economic recession to ever hit the United States would define the end of the decade-the Great Depression.

It was within this environment that Zeta Phi Beta Sorority was founded. Zeta Phi Beta Sorority was founded on the simple belief that sorority elitism and socializing should not overshadow the real mission for progressive organizations - to address societal mores, ills, prejudices, poverty, and health concerns of the day. Founded January 16, 1920, Zeta began as an idea conceived by five coeds at Howard University in Washington D.C.: Arizona Cleaver, Myrtle Tyler, Viola Tyler, Fannie Pettie and Pearl Neal. These five women, also known as our Five Pearls, dared to depart from the traditional coalitions for black women and sought to establish a new organization predicated on the precepts of Scholarship, Service, Sisterly Love and Finer Womanhood. It was the ideal of the Founders that the Sorority would reach college women in all parts of the country who were sorority minded and desired to follow the founding principles of the organization. Founder Viola Tyler was oft quoted to say "[In the ideal collegiate situation] there is a Zeta in a girl regardless of race, creed, or color, who has high standards and principles, a good scholarly average and an active interest in all things that she undertakes to accomplish."

Since Chi Lambda was chartered in 1982, over 60 outstanding women have dedicated themselves to upholding the principles of "Scholarship, Service, Sisterly Love, and Finer Womanhood." Chi Lambda is a chapter for the Rochester Metropolitan Area, which includes institutions such as University of Rochester, Rochester Institute of Technology, and SUNY Brockport. contact: If you would like more information, please contact Christal Dewberry (cdewb1@u.brockport)

Carl Davila (History) Invited to Speak in Doha, Qatar

The Katara Fifth String Festival

Katara, a culture and arts foundation in Qatar, has invited Dr. Carl Davila of the Department of History to speak at its The Fifth String: Festival of the Arabic Oud [lute] on March 20.

Dr. Davila will discuss the life of the 9th-century composer and musician, Ziryab, and his contributions to the history of the oud and to the courtly culture of Islamic Spain. Ziryab revolutionized both the construction and the chordature of the instrument, leaving a lasting legacy in the musical arts of North Africa and the Middle East.

The Fifth String Festival will feature oud players of many genres from across the Middle East and the world, as well as musical ensembles and experts giving demonstrations in oud construction.

Saru Jayaraman is the Co-Founder and Co-Director of the Restaurant Opportunities Centers United (ROC United); author of Behind the Kitchen Door; and Director of the Food Labor Research Center at the University of California, Berkeley. After 9/11, together with displaced World Trade Center workers, she co-founded ROC, which now has more than 18,000 worker members, 200 employer partners, and several thousand consumer members in a dozen states nationwide.

On Thursday, March 23, Saru Jayaraman will speak on the themes of her book Behind the Kitchen Door, highlighting issues of social justice in the restaurant industry. She will partake in a "Lunch and Learn" chat at the Rochester Educational Opportunity Center, 161 Chestnut Street, from 12:30 to 2 pm and will speak in the Liberal Arts Building on campus at 6:30 pm.

Honors Faculty Lecture: Tongue of Fire

The Honors Club is extremely proud to be sponsoring its first Annual Honors Faculty Lecture on Monday, March 27, as part of Women's History Month and the "Be the Revolution" series on campus.

Few women in early twentieth-century America generated as much controversy as Emma Goldman, whose activism earned her the title "The Most Dangerous Woman in the World." Through public speeches and writings, Goldman's ideas contributed to the rise of a feminist consciousness that recognized the personal as political and challenged rigid notions of gender/sex. Join Dr. Kowal for a discussion on the relevance of Goldman's ideas to understanding the social construction of womanhood.

The lecture will begin at 5 pm in the McCue Auditorium (LAB), and a reception will follow to celebrate the one-year anniversary of the publication of Dr. Kowal's book, "Tongue of Fire: Emma Goldman, Public Womanhood, and the Sex Question." Please join us, and encourage others to do the same!

Women's coalition forms Feminist group seeks center

by Debbie Bush

"We are all women, and as women we belong to the world's oldest and largest oppressed group," states Karen Cavalieri, founder of Brockport State Women's Coalition.

While the Coalition is a feminist organization, Cavalieri says it welcomes all men and women who are open to learning about issues confronting women today.

The Women's Coalition is a new campus group with approximately 20 currently active members.

Cavalieri said the group was actually "a spin-off" of a women's studies class called "Women and Self" taught by Dr. Bonnie Beck. "The more I learned about feminism and women's issues, the more I realized it was necessary not only to read about feminism, but to live my beliefs as well," Cavalieri said.

The result was the Women's Coalition.

College offers courses

"There's a need to find other women who feel the way you do," Cavalieri explained, adding that approximately one-half of the Coalition members have taken a women's studies course of some type.

The Women's Coalition stresses action over consciousness raising. Two primary goals set early in the semester were a Coalition newsletter and a campus women's center.

The first newsletter will probably be distributed around the campus some time next week Cavalieri said. Funded by the women's studies department, it will deal specifically with issues of concern to women.

Development of a campus women's center, Cavalieri said, is being blocked by the Coalition's inability to secure building space on campus. "We will use any legitimate means possible to get the center," she said. "We feel a real need for women to get together on campus," Cavalieri said.

Information timetable

The women's center would be a centralized source for information specifically dealing with women's needs. Information on birth control, counseling services, rape prevention, and what to do if you feel you're being discriminated against were cited as examples by Cavalieri. The center would be able to direct women to the proper people as well as complement existing services.

Cavalieri cited rape prevention as the most urgent problem facing campus women. "It's something that could happen at any time. As a result, it has definite priority," she said. Better night lighting of the campus and village, coupled with more foot patrols by public safety, are advocated by the Coalition, Cavalieri stated.

Womens Coalition 1979

There is a site online, a project of the state library councils, called NYS Historic Newspapers, which is a real treasure trove of NY history, politics, personalities and culture.

Basically they take microfilm of old newspapers from around the state, digitize it, and add it to the database. Titles added recently included the Yates County Whig, 1839-1855 and the Bethpage Tribune, 1966-date. This means you can search the full text, download page images...

The Stylus is one of several college newspapers in the database, for the years 1928-2014. A lot of the college history there! Recently it was very useful in starting to trace the history of the Womens Center, which turned out to have a deeper history than had been thought. There were articles about a "Womens Coalition" in the '70s that led to the establishment of a Womens Center c1980, which seems to have flourished for a few years, well before today's center opened in 1997.

The aim of this group is to provide a space and opportunity for faculty and staff who self-identify as faculty and staff of color and allies to make connections and establish a community of support. This group will facilitate opportunities for networking and establishing cross-disciplinary collaborations.

The event will take place Thursday, March 30, from 11 am to noon in Seymour College Union, Room 222. This group has the support of the Equity, Inclusion and Diversity Office. contact: Dr. Claudette Brown-Smythe.

Journalism Student Finalist for Award

Justin Sullivan, a senior journalism and broadcasting major, will learn at an awards ceremony April 8 in New York City if he has won a Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ) Mark of Excellence Award.

His Stylus story, "Adjunct Professors Wage War Against Pay Inequality," has been named a finalist in Region 1, which includes journalists in nine states. Winners at the Region 1 level will go on to compete for a national award.

The SPJ Mark of Excellence Awards "honor the best in student journalism," according to the organization. In addition to writing and reporting for The Stylus, Sullivan has worked extensively at 89.1 The Point, including as news director.

They attended the prestigious National Conference for McNair Scholars and Undergraduate Research at College Park, MD. The theme of the conference was "Creating a Global Impact: Scholarship, Leadership, and Excellence in the 21st Century."

The McNair program, established by the federal government in 1986, prepares students who are either first generation and economically disadvantaged or members of a historically underrepresented minority group to successfully earn a doctoral/graduate degree.

Over the course of the conference the Brockport scholars attended professional development workshops, visited an extensive graduate school fair, and presented their research in both oral and poster presentations; they also networked with more than 300 fellow McNair scholars from all over the nation. contact: Herma Volpe-van Dijk

Construction Update – Renovations to A.W. Brown Building and construction of new Academic Success Center about to begin

Renovations to A.W. Brown Building and Academic Success Center getting started

You may have noticed the installation of temporary fence being installed around the Albert W. Brown Building. We are pleased to report that construction work is about to begin for the renovations to the Brown Building. This $8,000,000 project will renovate, modernize, make more energy efficient, and enhance the safety of the Brown Building while also constructing the new Academic Success Center at the north wing of the building. Construction is expected to extend until April 2018, and will be done in phases while areas of the building are still occupied. Please note that the second floor of the A.W. Brown Building is still open for business and is occupied by most of the personnel of the departments of Mathematics, Computing Science, Education, Assessment, and the Deans of the Schools of Math and Science, Education and Human Development, and Health and Human Performance. The departments of Criminal Justice, Social Work, and Counselor Education relocated to Morgan 3 previously in January.
